Rollis of Vulcan was accepted and the presbytery approved the action of the executive in giving the call to High River United Church to Rev. John Sorochan. Mr. Rollis is going to Eaton, Sask.

It is understood that Vulcan United Church will not call a new minister to replace Mr. Rollis until spring.

Reports were heard from Mrs. Dave Anderson of Nanton, president of the W.A. organizations of the Presbytery, and from mission groups.

Old Age Assistance Available Now For 65-70 Age Group

Information regarding the Old Age Assistance Plan of the Alberta Government has now been received at the County Office and is reproduced in full here for the information of those concerned.

The Provincial Government, under authority of the Old Age Assistance Act and the Old Age Pensions Act (Alberta), is prepared to pay 50 per cent of any allowable assistance up to a maximum of $40.00 per month, to persons who have reached the age of 65 years but are not yet of the age of 70 years.

Single persons with an income of $720 or more a year and married persons with an income of $1200 or more are not eligible to receive this assistance.

The Act says: Any person in receipt of an allowance under the Blind Persons Act, or the War Veterans' Allowance Act, 1946, or a pension under the Old Age Security Act, cannot qualify for assistance under this scheme. An unmarried person with an income of $240.00 per year or less, exclusive of this form of assistance, may obtain the maximum allowance of $40.00 per month. If his income is in excess of this amount the allowance will be reduced to a figure so that the combined income and assistance will not exceed the sum of $720.00 per annum.

In respect to a married person living with his spouse, the corresponding figure is $1200.00 per annum, while for a married person who lives with his spouse who is blind within the meaning of the Blind Persons Act, the figure is set at $1320.00 per annum.

To qualify for this form of assistance, persons in the 65-70 age group must have resided in Canada for the 20 years immediately preceding the date of the proposed commencement of assistance payments, or, if he has not so resided, he must have been present in Canada prior to those twenty years for an aggregate period equal to twice the aggregate per-

Town to Present Resolution

Urge Precautions Reduce Number of Drownings

Mayor Allan and Councillors Morrison, Scotney, Scales and McIntyre were present at the October council meeting of the Town of Vulcan, held Tuesday evening of this week.

Building permits to the value of $9,200 were granted as follows:

W. D. Allan, addition of 6x8 porch to dwelling, $200.

B. A. Lloyd, 14x21 addition to dwelling, $300.

Utility Engineers, Calgary, 12x20 ft. steel constructed building on C.P.R. property to be used as propane plant, $2,000.

W. A. Shrigley, 38x24 frame house, $6,500.

Stanley Scales, addition of 1 1/2 x 12 ft. porch to dwelling, $700.

A proviso regarding the granting of Mr. Lloyd's building permit was that the addition to his dwelling could not be used as a garage as he had previously been granted a permit for building a garage on this lot.

The application of Ed Rosbuck to erect a 24x30 garage on Lot 13, Block 25, was refused, it being pointed out that in accordance with the terms of the Building and Zoning Bylaw there would be insufficient room on this building site for a garage of such dimensions.

Civil Defence

The matter of Civil Defence was discussed and Mayor Allan and members of the council enrolled as Civil Defence workers. School principal Einar Kumlin attended the meeting and offered to co-operate with the town council in any civil defence program involving the organization of the school children.

Appointment Enumerator

Mrs. Edna M. Farr was appointed enumerator for the purpose of completing the supplementary voters list.

Resolution re Drownings

The following resolution from the Town of Vulcan will be presented to the annual convention of the Union of Alberta Municipalities to be held in Calgary Oct. 12-13:

"Resolved that the Government of the Province of Alberta be strongly urged to take whatever steps are necessary to see that precautionary measures are put into effect at lake resorts, beaches, tourist camps, etc., in this province in an effort to reduce the number of drownings."

Other Business

The secretary was instructed to write the Lions Club advising them that the playground equipment would have to be removed unless it was repaired.

A letter was received from D. D. McQueen tendering his resignation as auditor for the Town of Vulcan.

Mayor W. D. Allan was appointed the town's representative on the board of the Foothills Health Unit.

District Couple United in Marriage

A lovely autumn wedding of interest to the district, took place in High River St. Benedict's Church on Saturday, Oct. 6 at 2:30 p.m., when Rev. Vaughan Birch united in marriage Dorothy Irene Flebotte, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Flebotte of Ensign to Erwin R. Dougdale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dougdale of Ontario.

The bride, given away by her father, was very beautiful in a trained white satin gown, with bodice and overskirt of white lace. She wore a floor length veil held in place with a headpiece studded with tiny brilliants. She carried a bouquet of pink gardenias and roses tied with white satin streamers.

Matron of honor, Miss Louise Parker of Brant, looked lovely in a rose colored satin and net gown and matching headpiece. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The bridesmaid Miss Wilma Walbor of Brant was lovely in a pale yellow lace gown with matching headpiece, and she too, carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Little Fay Larsen of Ensign was flower girl, and looked sweet in a yellow taffeta floor length gown. She wore yellow flowers in her hair and carried a colonial bouquet of carnations and baby roses.

Best man was Alvin Dougdale, brother of the groom, and ushers were Robert Irwin Jr. and Bert Larsen.

Mrs. Flebotte, mother of the bride, wore a most becoming green dress, with black accessories and wore a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's parents were unable to attend and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Irwin acted in their place, as Erwin, the groom, has been employed at their farm for some four years. Mrs. Irwin's ensemble was tan with black accessories and she also wore a pink carnation corsage.

After the wedding, some 42 guests attended a reception at the Riverside Motel, High River. The table was beautifully decorated, centered with a three-tiered wedding cake.

A toast was given to the bride and groom, by Rev. Vaughan Birch, and the groom suitably replied. The best man presented a toast to the bridesmaids, and read two telegrams of congratulations from the groom's parents and sister in Ontario.

Rev. Vaughan Birch, made a toast to Mr. and Mrs. Flebotte and Mr. and Mrs. Irwin, to which Mr. Irwin and Mrs. Flebotte replied.

The bride changed to a matching medium blue suit, the same as the groom and she wore red accessories, and a red rose bud corsage for going away. They left for a honeymoon to be spent in the U.S. On their return, they will make their home in the district.

Harvest Finally Under Way

Combines Busy; Farmers Race Against Time

The long-awaited "break" in the weather appears to have come this week with sunny skies and daytime temperatures in the 70's and throughout this area and the rest of Alberta farmers and townspeople alike are hoping that the dry weather will continue long enough to dry out and ripen the crops and allow harvesting to proceed.

Combines were humming on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week and every available man was being pressed into service to speed the harvest of the big crop. Harvest in this district is generally completed by this time of year but the almost continuous rain of the summer and fall has held up harvesting operations to such an extent that at this late date an estimated 90 percent of the crop is still to be safely harvested.

Uneven ripening of the crop, bleaching and frost have combined to lower the grade of wheat and grain now being delivered is averaging about No. 3 Northern. The lower grade is being offset, however, by the heavy yield and Vulcan district is expected to average 25 to 30 bushels to the seedling acre if the crop is safely harvested. Many heavier yields are being reported from the lighter soil area east of Vulcan.

Many crops were badly lodged and have had to be swathed one way. There has been a heavy demand for side delivery rakes and swath turners to speed up the drying of grain already in the swath.

Practically every available combine in the district has been put into service and farmers whose grain is not yet ripe enough or dry enough to thresh are working in their neighbors' fields. Harvesting of this crop has become a race of men and machines against time. Three weeks of dry weather would put the bulk of the crop into elevators and granaries.

Services Held For Mrs. Carrie Martin, District Pioneer

A pioneer resident of the Vulcan district, Mrs. Carrie Elizabeth Martin of Burnaby, B.C., died suddenly on Sunday, Sept. 30, from injuries sustained in a bad fall that morning. She was 78 years of age.

She had lived in the Vulcan district from 1910 until moving to Calgary in 1945. She moved to Vancouver in 1947 and had resided at the coast since that time.

Born in Walkerton, Bruce County, Ontario, she received most of her education in Niagara Falls and married Alonzo Theodore Martin in 1903. In 1910 the couple came west and engaged in farming south of Vulcan.

An active member of the Women's Institute, Mrs. Martin was District Convener of that organization for many years. She was also very active in church work and was organist of the Presbyterian Church until the Anglican Church was established here, when she directed much of her efforts to the building and maintaining of the church. She was an active member of the St. Aldhelm's Ladies Guild and took a keen interest in many community affairs.

Predeceased by her husband in 1939, Mrs. Martin is survived by one son, Clarence, of Vulcan and two daughters, Miss Dorothy Martin of White Rock, B.C., and Mrs. C. E. (Gertrude) Stole of Burnaby, B.C. A younger sister, Mrs. Edith McFordie of Vancouver, and a younger brother, Frank Stephens of Calgary, also survive, as well as four grandchildren at Vulcan.

On Tuesday, Oct. 2, a quiet memorial service was held at the chapel of the Burnaby Funeral Directors, conducted by Rev. T. L. Hipp.

On October 5, funeral services were held at St. Aldhelm's Anglican Church, Vulcan, attended by a large number of Vulcan friends. Services were conducted by Rev. E. A. Justice and pallbearers were John Dorch, Errett King, W. L. Todd, George Todd, Robert Todd and W. J. Montgomery.

Interment was made in the family plot at the Vulcan cemetery.

It Looks Different in Print

A frequent cry in the ear of every editor is "Why don't you go after so-and-so in the paper?" It may be an organization or an individual that is up for criticism, but the self-appointed street corner judge always has a forceful argument as to why "something should be done."

Well, an editor generally tries to follow up the matter brought to his attention. He makes every effort to get both sides of the question and ends up with quite a bit of information, pro and con. It may be a matter of something being done that seems questionable, or of something not being done, for no apparent reason.

Usually, a little probing brings forth the conclusion that there were definite reasons why that particular course of action was followed by the individual or organization in question.

How easy it would be to take a firm stand on some contentious question by refusing to hear anything but one angle. And it would also be easy to make irreparable mistakes by pursuing this policy. Unless, after weighing up all information gained, there has been an obvious injustice, the editor will likely leave the topic quite alone.

We ran across a candid little story the other day by a writer who confesses he once seized the opportunity to write a guest editorial, rejoicing in the chance it would give him to air his grievances and "mow down" a few officials who apparently were neglecting their jobs. He started off like a whirlwind, but soon his eager pen halted. He began to re-read his production, disturbed by the sudden thought that his attack was one-sided and might not stand up to the cold scrutiny which is the test of the printed word. Sure enough, it didn't look so good on paper, although it had sounded really fine when he was spouting off on the street corner. He revised and rewrote, revised and rewrote, but his peevish still looked pretty silly when they were committed to paper, and he finally gave up the whole idea.

And that sums it up quite nicely. The printed word does not permit of the extravagances granted to street corner arguments and discussion. But for a well-presented argument or viewpoint it is still the best medium. The Advocate is happy to print guest editorials at any time. We prefer (but will not insist upon) publishing the writer's name, for if a person is not willing to stand behind his argument, it probably isn't worth setting up in type.

But if you have a pet conviction or a well-founded peeve, we'll be glad to publish your opinion.

Tough Going

The Town Council co-operated with citizens in the Spring in what was called Clean-up and Paint-up Week. For this they deserve to be commended. However, during a wet season such as we have endured this year it has become apparent that something should be done to clean-up under foot in Vulcan.

This was never more evident than during the very wet month of September. One needed only to observe the youngsters plodding along to school to notice the poor condition of sidewalks and crossings leading up to the school at the far end of the town. Many young folks have to walk about a mile in the mud several times a day.

While sidewalks exist in some parts of the town there are streets leading directly to the school without a sidewalk for many blocks. Even where there are sidewalks the crossings are buried in mud.

We think that a small crew of men with shovels and a few loads of cinders could improve the walking conditions in our town. This is work that could be done when other work is at a standstill.

The stop signs installed this year are fine to bring the auto traffic into line. However, we think that we need attention to the sidewalks so that pedestrian traffic can get going.

American tourists want to get to know Canada and Canadians. We must impress them with the fact that we are a courteous, fair dealing people, glad to welcome them to our country. —C.W.N.A.

Advertising is sort of like a man journeying though life. Just like the man, advertising accomplishes most through persistence.

THIS AND THAT BY V.A.C.

This story has a point but you will have to read to the end to find it. It is a story of the Lethbridge High School, when schools were the traditional type. The time—1925-26; the place—the Manual Training Building, which was then the Lethbridge High School, and is today known as the Bowman School. Characters—A. J. Watson, Principal, after whom the new Allan Watson School was recently named; Harry Sweet, Composition teacher, now High School Inspector for Northern Alberta; George Wilson, Science teacher, now Superintendent of Calgary School Division; Miss Maudsley, Literature teacher, now a Professor at the University of B.C.; and one Grade Twelve student who prefers to be known in this story as The Boy.

The Grade Twelve class was seated and attentive as Miss Maudsley hurried into the room for the Literature lesson. Her arms were laden with a pile of note books, which she quickly returned to their owners. Each student looked at his book to learn how his latest work, an essay, had been graded. Then a formal lesson in Literature proceeded. However, one student, The Boy, was stunned by what Miss Maudsley had written across the top of his essay, and spent the whole of that period thinking about it. Briefly she had told him that his book was a disgrace and that he must copy the work into a new note book.

Time passed and he did as he was instructed by his teacher. Pupils did as they were told then. However, when he again handed in his Literature to Miss Maudsley there was written on the first page the following:

To A Note Book
I'll make a hasty verse or two,
A Preface, Note Book New, for you.

A short, short time ago I took
A sad farewell of another book—
But let me tell you, Note Book New,
The faults of that old book were few.

Its leaves, I know, were looking old
But each was inked with words worth gold
Alas, they vowed I'd marred its worth

By sentiments I wrote for mirth
Some years ago! Ah, foolish me,
To scribble them where all could see!

So, Note Book New, if you would be

A book of prose and poetry,
Without a doubt you must disclose,
A part for lyrics, one for prose.
Keep always clean and very neat,
Let each page be a perfect sheet
With punctuation, spelling too—
Without mistakes at all in you.
If all these virtues you possess,
Miss Maudsley will be pleased;
(I guess)

And you will be to her, I'm sure,
A worthy book for Literature.

More time passed. Nothing happened. Time was drawing near for another essay assignment in Literature. The Boy began to wonder about the delay. He couldn't discover any change in the attitude of Miss Maudsley towards him in the daily classes. As time went on he sensed that something dire was going on. Finally, a hint was dropped that the staff were holding a meeting to discuss a number of students in the school.

It happened. The Boy was told the following day to, stay after school. He wished he hadn't written that in his note book. Oh, well! He would have to take his medicine like a man. He did wish he hadn't bragged about writing it. The others would laugh at him if he got punished. It would be one of the men. The lady teachers were always considered above punishing a fellow in Grade Twelve.

Four o'clock came. The others went home while The Boy sat in his seat and took their jibes good-naturedly. Fifteen minutes passed. Foot steps were heard down the hall. Somebody was coming. The door opened. It was Mr. Sweet! Mr. Sweet had always been friendly. He always gave good marks in Composition. There wasn't the usual smile on Mr. Sweet's face. He was holding something in one hand—The Boy recognized it at once—the Note Book. Mr. Sweet advanced and held out the book.

"Is this your book?" he inquired in a firm voice.

"Yes, sir." The Boy was very meek.

"Did you write this?" asked Mr. Sweet, as he pointed to the first page.

"Yes, sir," replied The Boy more meekly.

"Is Miss Maudsley your Literature teacher?"

"Yes, Mr. Sweet."

"Has Miss Maudsley been fair to you?"

"She made me write my essay over."

"Was your other note book a good book for Literature?"
"She said it wasn't, Mr. Sweet."
"So, you wrote this poem in your new book."

"I did, Mr. Sweet," said The Boy, ever so meekly. He felt that the end was coming suddenly. It did. Mr. Sweet said in his sternest voice, "The staff have had a look at your Note Book and reached a decision."

Just when The Boy thought that all was lost Mr. Sweet smiled.
"The staff have decided that a fellow who can write such poetry should make a good editor for the High School Yearbook."

The Boy was so surprised that he was speechless for some time. What he said doesn't matter to this story, anyway. But he had learned a good lesson.

The point of this story, which I promised at the beginning, is apparent. There were a number of wise, efficient men and women on the staff of that High School, who knew how to deal with the students of the school. They secured a high standard of work from students by securing and maintaining the confidence of each pupil. Not one of them was too busy to spend hours after school to help a student who wanted help. Lessons were checked carefully every day to secure better results. In those days the janitor was not the last person to leave the school at the end of a school day.

If the men and women who took part in this story have played a prominent part in the education of Canadian students since that time the reason is obvious. If their students have not met with success, it is not for the lack of the inspiration which a student gets from an understanding teacher.

Wheat Board Loosens Delivery Quota Policy

The Canadian Wheat Board has loosened up its policy on delivery quotas of wheat.

The Board announced that effective October 1, farmers can deliver wheat to an alternative delivery point when the wheat quota at such a point is 11 bushels or higher.

Delivery of oats, barley and rye must still be confined to the designated point shown in the producer's permit book.

If the wheat delivery quota at the delivery point designated in the farmer's permit book is less than 11 bushels per acre, he may deliver wheat to a station with an 11 bushel or higher quota. However, his total deliveries must not exceed the quota in effect at the new alternative delivery point.

At present farmers can only deliver wheat to stations designated in their permit books. The Board said the relaxing of its quota results from harvesting becoming general throughout all three prairie provinces and was also due to availability of space in certain stations. As space becomes available at other points, the Board said a similar policy will be followed, although not necessarily

It's Dollars and Cents You're Burning

Don't burn stubble. Printed like that it doesn't sound very serious, and with the vast amount of straw available this fall there may seem some excuse for getting it out of the way, to provide for easier tilling and seeding. An excuse, however, is not always a satisfactory reason, and a moment's reflection will bring to light the dangers of stubble-burning.

C. A. Cheshire, Agricultural Engineer, Alberta Department of Agriculture, points out that in the first place modern tillage and seeding equipment can operate in heavy trash cover with little difficulty. Secondly, straw returned to the soil is of far greater benefit than the few ashes that remain after burning. Held in the soil surface, it improves tilth, helps to prevent erosion, and provides food for the tiny soil life that is so essential to fertility. Returning straw to the soil is only part of good farm practice, but if its benefits were no greater than that of preventing drifting and excess run-off it would be well worth while. If soil conservation means anything to you, Don't burn stubble.

The first vehicle to attain a speed of 100 miles an hour was Engine No. 999 of the New York Central. It hit that speed May 11, 1893, near Batavia, N.Y.

There is one period when a man is undisputed master in his own house; it's from the day of his birth until about his third year. An old lady was sending a Bible to a friend overseas. Examining the package carefully, the postal clerk inquired if it contained anything breakable.

With The District Agriculturist Hugh Michael

Tall Wheatgrass Appears Promising

Two farmers of the Claresholm district, Mr. Roy Stewart and Mr. Wm. Yorgason, seeded a small amount of wheatgrass seed during 1950. They were both interested in obtaining some seed of this grass because of information that was released by the Experimental Stations and other research institutions, concerning its ability to grow on soils containing considerable amounts of alkali. On the farm of Mr. Stewart, the tall wheat grass was growing on land that before would produce only wild barley and Russian thistle. At the time of my visit the grass was between four and five feet high, and no doubt would be a potential source of palatable and nutritious hay. Since many farmers in southern Alberta have alkali spots that are relatively unproductive, this grass may prove to be worthwhile as a hay crop on these areas.

Tall wheatgrass is adapted to a wide range of soil types, but appears to be particularly suited to alkali, especially where there is a high water table and a seepy condition. While this grass tolerates a considerable amount of alkali, it will not establish itself on areas showing a white crust of salts. It has also been found that this grass does not do well in alkali soil that does not receive any more moisture than rainfall. Tall wheatgrass can be used to advantage on areas subject to flooding or where the water table is high. Information available shows it to be winter hardy.

Early spring flooding does not appear to harm tall wheatgrass, providing water does not stand on it for more than five weeks. The seed also stands flooding for about the same length of time, which makes it possible to seed it into low lying areas in the late fall.

Tall wheatgrass may be seeded in the early spring, early fall before September 1st, or in the late fall after October 15th. Early fall seeding should not be attempted if the soil or grasshoppers are prevalent. When seeded for hay or pasture, six inch rows are recommended and 15 pounds of seed per acre is the rate of seeding. This method and rate of seeding is also recommended for seed production in moist areas. In areas where moisture is limited it is usually seeded at 3 to 5 pounds per acre in rows of three feet apart.

The hay should be cut when the grass commences to head, if left until heading is completed it tends to become coarse. When cut for seed, it should be cut when the seed is in the medium dough stage. The seed crop is usually handled by swathing and combining, or by cutting with a binder and threshing.

AWHILE back, he figured out just what a new tractor would do for his farm. He didn't have enough cash in the bank to handle the deal. So he talked things over with his bank manager, fair and square.

He got his bank loan — and the tractor. From now on, he expects to work more acreage, increase his farm income. Soon the bank will be repaid.

He looks to his chartered bank for market information, too, and any other banking service he may need.

That's what he wants. That's what he gets. Sound business all round!

Lived At Carmangay

The late Mrs. Isabel Gibson, who passed away in a Lethbridge Hospital on Sept. 26 was well known in the Carmangay district, where she resided from 1926 until 1934. During that time her husband H. S. Gibson was manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in town. She was Worthy Matron of Heather Chapter O.E.S. in 1933 and also an active member of the Carmangay United Church.

She is survived by one son Sheldon Gibson at Peace River and a daughter Betty in Lethbridge. Her husband predeceased her in 1939.

Old Timer of the Black Spring Ridge Dies

The Black Spring Ridge district lost another old timer last Tuesday, when H. A. Frank died in the local hospital after an illness of two weeks.

The late Mr. Frank was born in Rochester, N.Y. on May 24th, 1875. From there he moved to Owosso, Michigan in 1885, then to Minnesota and North Dakota in 1892. In 1906 Mr. and Mrs. Frank came to Claresholm and then in the following year, they moved to the Black Spring Ridge district east of Carmangay, where they still make their home.

Two years ago they celebrated their 53rd anniversary.

Mr. Frank had taken an active part in the community life. He was president of the Mutual Telephone company since it was formed, for many years had been the secretary-treasurer of the Black Spring Ridge School. He was a carpenter by trade, and there are not many homes in this district that he had not done work on.

Among those who survive him are: his widow, Almeda; three sons, Alfred of Woodland, Cal., Peter of Black Diamond and Vernon of Quesnel, B.C.; two daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Fraser and Mrs. Vivian Millican of Carmangay; two sisters who live in Michigan; 22 grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from the Community Hall on Thursday afternoon, when a large group of friends and neighbors attended to pay their last respects to the late H. A. Frank.

Rev. Peter Dawson officiated at the services and burial was in the Mountain View Cemetery, Lethbridge with Martin Bros. in charge of funeral arrangements.

Pallbearers were Delmar Shearer, John Hauser, Emeric Lacey, Edward Stettner, Vilas Teskey and Hjalmar Nelson.

THAT LITTLE GIRL

Little girls are the nicest things on earth,
That's a statement that few will deny.

They are born to bring you joy
From the day of their birth
And their charms too, to gladden the eye.

We own such a girl, she's our ray of sunshine
That banishes clouds from our scene;
And no matter her mood be, it's naughty or good
She's the answer to our every dream.

Of moods temperamental she has her full share
And as cross as the next she can be;
And though oft aggravated I try to be fair,
For she's still all the world to me.

She's the picture of innocence, playing in mud,
Digging up joy by the root.
She's also the picture of young motherhood
Dragging her doll by the foot.

She's as soft as a kitten, as sly as a fox,
As fleet on the run as a deer.
She's as cute as a monkey, as sharp as a cat,
She can melt your heart with a tear.

She's crazy with joy when she gets a new hat,
A dress or a new pair of shoes.
She'll mess up your house, yes, and mess up your hair,
And oft give you a dose of the blues.

She'll gouge you for dimes, when you've little to spare,
And your patience is ready to crack;
And then with a hug and with tears in her eye
The sunshine begins to come back.

She's a nerve-racking nuisance, a bundle of noise,
With a temper not unlike your own;
And with all her faults, she's one of life's joys

And maybe you reap what you have sown.

When your dreams tumble down
And your world seems a mess,
And your heart chills with worry and fear,
She throws her arm 'round you
And gives a carve
And puts her lips close to your ear.

She murmurs so softly, in accents so sweet,
That you start to feel miserably small.

As she whispers, dear mamma, I love you so much,
I love you the best of them all.

Water Systems For Houses

For those who suffer the inconveniences of a "bucket and dipper" water system in the house, Greville B. Harrison, of the Swift Current, Sask., Experimental Station, suggests the installation of some plumbing fixtures.

Installation of a barrel or tank for cold water is a good first step. A pump for filling basins and kettles will save dipping into the tank. The pump should be near the sink, if possible. A semi-rotary pump mounted on the wall will take up no counter space.

The "out-of-reach" space above kitchen cupboards may be a good place for a range boiler. A pipe is run down to a tap above the sink and the tank is filled with a pump.

A second boiler may be set up beside the kitchen range. The boiler is connected by a pipe to the one above the cupboards and a water front installed in the range. A pipe connects the top boiler to a tap above the sink.

An opening must be left in the tank above the cupboard so that air can escape when it is being filled and steam will escape, preventing the build-up of dangerous pressures, if the water in the boiler boils.

The system should be planned carefully so that it will be ready for a fully automatic installation later.

For further information on water systems for the farm home, write the Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current.
